Continuing Education Office

Continuing Education Office was established in 1992 with quality faculty and latest equipment to fulfill the belief of Ling Tung University, which aims to provide community service, lifelong learning opportunities, and vocational education. Since its establishment, Continuing Education Office has provided many academic and technological services to meet the needs of national economy development and community.

Mission

- Provide diversified learning accesses.
- Provide quality learning environment for individuals and groups.
- Provide community services for the needs of the community development.

Services We Provide

- Credit Program: To help workers with further studies, we have four year credit programs, and graduate credit programs.
- Non Credit Program: For those who want to learn, we have non-credit training programs with quality faculty. Those programs deliver latest knowledge and students to fulfill their dreams.
- Government Training Programs: To meet the needs of national development, many training programs sponsored by both central and local governments are provided to help unemployed workers to have second professional skills, find jobs, or get vocational licenses.
- Language Training Programs: To meet the globalization, we provide many English and Japanese training programs to improve students' language proficiency.

Our Performance

- In recent three years, we have helped almost 1,000 students in government training programs to find jobs.
- Students in language training programs have increased because a small-size class and quality teachers have helped students to learn.
- Each year almost 200 students join credit programs. Among them, almost 80 percent of students have successfully had further study chances after finishing credit programs.
